ArtSpace is the unconventional art gallery that has just opened in Casablanca. The three founders behind it: Hind, Nawal and Amine Amharech wish to exhibit works of "some artists that we follow, others we develop, and others whom we'll help emerge." Because "we have a deep conviction that an art gallery must have the vocation to offer new and authentic creations to the eyes of collectors, buyers and art lovers!" As Amine Amharech explains in a statement.

So, who's better than Mahi Binebine and Hassan Darsi to inaugurate this space. The two talented artists with strong commitments made the incredible exhibition "Indivision". This latter is the story of a desire to bring out their differences and of what brings them together as a third artist, an artist in "Indivision", that nourishes their past and present experience, their stories, their resonances and recurrent poetic footprints in their work as artists, as Florence Renault-Darsi, an art historian and exhibition curator, describes in a statement.

Clearly, they dive to better embark us in a universe in which we can see barely sketched silhouettes. Ghostly figures tortured by an unspeakable pain that we hear through silent cries ... A tormented story that could be the one of a birth or a rebirth. Mahi Binebine and Hassan Darsi come together in an "Indivision" that looks like an outlet, as Florence Renault-Darsi points out, adding that it is also there that we expect the artists, in their capacity to explore and reveal the evils and the contradictions of our terrestrial world, without compromise. Two universes that could have been thought to have been parallel, four hands, and certainly to look at a fifth, which would not belong to one or the other ...
